What Are Peptones?

NATURAL BIOACTIVE NUTRIENTS WITH TARGETED INTELLIGENCE

Peptones are natural biopeptides: low-molecular-weight peptides and amino acids obtained through controlled hydrolysis of specific animal tissues.

They deliver bioactive nutrients that are highly bioavailable and designed by nature to support specific tissues and functions.

Bioactive Peptides (Biopeptides)

Short chains of amino acids that carry biological information and natural activity.

FROM PROTEINS TO BIOACTIVE NUTRIENTS

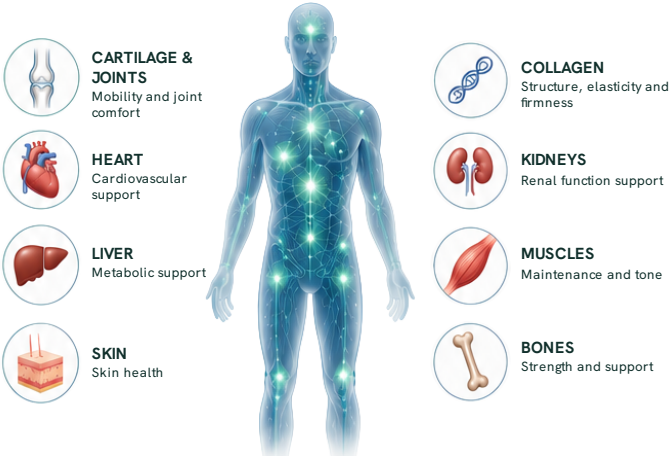

NATURE CREATES DIVERSITY. WE PRESERVE ITS INTELLIGENCE.

Each tissue has a unique peptide profile. Peptones retain this natural biological signature to provide targeted nutritional support.

Organ-Specific Nutrition

Different tissues = different peptide profiles

Different needs = different nutritional support

THE LINE

Peptonum Linfar®

Advanced nutri-cell regeneration

The Peptonum Linfar® line works from inside the cell, delivering specific bioactive nutrients (peptones) for each organ and function. Each formula is organ-specific — a distinct peptone profile matched to the tissue it supports.

The latest advances in cellular nutrition help strengthen the body's own production of nutrients such as collagen and elastin, reactivate essential metabolic functions, and help offset the natural wear of organs and tissues.
